Ernie O'Malley

Born in Castlebar, County Mayo, Ernie O'Malley moved to Dublin with his family and was educated at the O'Connell School. A medical student at UCD at Easter 1916 he fought in the GPO, worked as a full-time organiser for the IRA from 1918, commanded the Second Southern Division, was captured in December 1920 but escaped in February 1921 without having revealed his true identity. Strongly anti-Treaty, he fought in the Four Courts and was among the last to vacate the building. He was Director of Organisation and Acting Assistant Chief of Staff for the anti-Treaty forces and was captured during a raid on the O'Rahilly house in Ailesbury Road. He was one of the last prisoners to be released in July 1924 after an imprisonment that had included a forty one day hunger strike and his election as Sinn Féin TD for North Dublin in the 1923 general election. At Frank Aiken's invitation he accompanied him on the 1927 trip to the United States to raise funds for the Irish Press. Much of the rest of his life was taken up with travelling, farming, journalism and broadcasting. On Another Man's Wound, his account of the War of Independence, was published in 1936 and The Singing Flame, dealing with the Civil War, posthumously in 1978. He married Helen Hooker in 1935.

The O'Malley Notebooks

The papers of Ernie O'Malley include a series of 53 notebooks containing the handwritten transcripts of interviews conducted by O'Malley with c.400 of his former colleagues from the revolutionary period, concerning their experiences during that period.

They parallel the interviews gathered by the Bureau of Military History 1913-21; and it is likely that it was the Bureau's activities that prompted O'Malley to develop his own interviewing project which he conducted during the period 1948-54.

The interviews in the O'Malley Notebooks do differ significantly from those of the B.M.H in at least one important respect. The O'Malley interviews cover the whole revolutionary period including the Civil War, whereas the Bureau interviews stop at the Truce in July 1921.

The main finding aids for these interviews are this index by name which shows the locale in which the interviewee was active.; and a separate index by locale.
