Global Engagement Master's Partnership Pathway Programme

The Global Engagement Master's Partnership Pathway (GEMPP) Programmes offer students the best way to prepare for their world class UCD master's degree through a combination of academic, language, cultural and study skills modules.

PROGRAMME SUMMARY

The GEMPP Programmes offer the flexibility of a one trimester programme starting in January (3+0.5+1) or a two trimester (3+1+1) programme beginning in September. Students will attend English for Academic Purposes classes and modules relevant to their academic subject area. Students will also have the opportunity to take thesis preparation, cultural, and creative thinking modules while acclimatising to life in UCD before commencing their master's studies.

GEMPP students must meet the academic entry requirements of their chosen master's. GEMPP students achieving the progression requirements will automatically receive a full offer for their master's. Progression requirements for different UCD master's programmes may vary. All necessary credits will be transferred to students' home universities after completing the programme.

For further information on progression requirements and for a list of master's available through our GEMPP Programme, please visit www.ucd.ie/cegl/programmes/pathways/ge%20pmp/

Graduate Profile

Weihao Meng, GEMPP UCD-BUCT
Progressed to MEngSc Biopharmaceutical
Engineering and PhD

I am a master student majoring in Biopharmaceutical Engineering. I joined premaster in 2018 by UCD-BUCT program. This year's English for academic purposes (EAP) education has significant influence on my future career development.

This project enabled me to perform better in my master's courses, including communication with teachers and group discussions. Moreover, I have also made great progress in academic writing which means a lot for a master student. At present,

I am applying for PhD position. The education in premaster is the cornerstone of my future academic career.

In 2022/23, 100% of GEMPP students met the progression requirements for their master's
