

2025 John Snow Anaesthesia Awards for Intercalating Med Students Now Open

The National Institute of Academic Anaesthesia (NIAA) is pleased to announce details of the 2025 John Snow Intercalated Awards available for intercalating medical students.

Awards are being offered by the following:

- Association of Anaesthetists/Anaesthesia
- British Journal of Anaesthesia (BJA)/Royal College of Anaesthetists (RCOA)
- Anaesthetic Research Society (ARS)
- Neuro Anaesthesia & Critical Care Society (NACCS)

Designed to encourage medical students with an interest in anaesthesia and its related disciplines, these awards are intended to contribute towards the student's personal/living costs. Project running costs are to be funded by the supervisor/institution. The John Snow Award is not intended to be used towards any project costs.

We are accepting applications for projects which may have already started providing this was during the current academic year, as well as those starting in the next academic year. We continue to encourage applications from students at institutions in Wales and Ireland (both ROI and NI). The awards are intended for students who are studying as part of a programme of work leading towards a registered medical qualification. Therefore, students of intercalated bachelor's or master's degrees are eligible to apply. Applications from students undertaking either programme of study will be reviewed in parallel.

For research projects that have already started, the information required on the application form should focus only on the research proposal rather than the results. Project running costs are to be funded by the supervisor/institution, and not the John Snow award.

Each institution can submit a maximum of four applications, so some co-ordination between academic supervisors/administrators will be required.

The closing date for applications is 5pm on Wednesday 30 April 2025.
