

Volume 40 (2020)

Articles, translations and interviews

Van den Bossche, Bart, “Starstruck: Astronomy, Cosmology and Imagination in the Novelle per un anno”, 8–21

Famà, Santi Luca, “In the Blissful Unconsciousness of Beasts’: Non-human Wording in Pirandello’s Novelle per un anno”, 22–36

Brondino, Andrea, “Postmodernist Continuities: The Legacy of L’umorismo in the Ironies of Umberto Eco and Richard Rorty”, 37–53

Barnes, John C., “What’s in a Name? ‘Canta l’epistola’”, 54–60

Ilievska, Ana, “‘Two Legs, a Torso and, on Top, a Machine’: A Post-humanist Reading of Quaderni di Serafino Gubbio operatore”, 61–82

Staffiero, Sophia, “Identity Crisis in Pirandello’s Novels”, 83–99

Valentini, Teresa, “A Critique of the ‘Concept’: Pirandello’s umorismo and Svevo’s spregiudicatezza”, 100–114

Two Short Stories by Pirandello, translated by Marella Feltrin-Morris, 115–27

Rambelli, Paolo, Excerpt from Quel che resta dei poeti: A Funeral Tea Party, 128–31

Production review

Così è (se vi pare) [Right You Are (If You Think So)], Palmerston Room, Fisher Building, St John’s College, Cambridge, 28–29 February 2020; in Italian with English captions (translation by members of the company) (Julie Dashwood), 132–33

Conference report

Society for Pirandello Studies Annual One-day Conference, “‘Maledetto sia Copernico!’: Pirandello and Revolutions in Contemporary Science, Philosophy, Epistemology and Aesthetics”, Institute of Modern Languages Research, Senate House, London, 19 October 2019 (Santi Luca Famà), 134–35