

Catherine McAloon

Lecturer/Assistant Professor

#IWD2020
#EACHFOREQUAL

UCD School of Veterinary Medicine

“I believe to achieve gender balance we must start with ourselves, we all must tackle unconscious bias every day and work to change the narrative. I believe we must lead by example, be positive, be kind and keep an open mind”.

I am an Assistant Professor in farm animal clinical studies in the School of Veterinary Medicine. I am a farm animal vet and I have a DVMS postgraduate research degree in the area of dairy cow nutrition. I hold a Diploma of the European College of Bovine Health Management, I am a European Specialist in Bovine Health as well as a RCVS Recognised Specialist in Cattle Health and Production. My current job involves clinical work in UCD vet hospital and on farm, research activity as well as teaching veterinary nursing and veterinary medicine students. I am very passionate about farm animal health and enjoy the opportunity to work with all stakeholders in the agricultural industry. I strive to channel my positive enthusiasm for herd health in all aspects of my job and I am very fortunate to have the privilege to be involved in veterinary education.