“I think representation is key to creating a gender equal world. We say that if little girls can't see it, they can't be it. But I think that goes for all women and men. To see someone lead the way inspires so many more. It just takes one person to push the boat out to make people realise that they can do it too”.

I'm a fourth year veterinary medicine student here at UCD. I am 22 years old and am from a village called Shanagarry in East Cork. I don't know yet what area of veterinary I'd like to get into, I like everything at the moment. I'd love to work abroad for a year or two after qualifying but would always come home again. I have wanted to be a vet for as long as I can remember.
