

Dr Lynne Hughes

Associate Professor

#IWD2020
#EACHFOREQUAL

UCD School of Veterinary Medicine

“I believe that both men and women need to change their ingrained beliefs; to not accept the status quo. Women are different to men, but that does not mean they are not as capable or valuable to society. We should play to people’s strengths and value all their attributes equally.”

I am an Associate Professor in Veterinary Anaesthesia and I lead the anaesthesia team in UCD Veterinary Hospital. Together we provide anaesthesia for a range of animals from dogs and cats to horses, farm, zoo and wildlife animals. I enjoy teaching veterinary anaesthesia to 4th and 5th year students of veterinary medicine, especially in clinical rotations in the Hospital. I have been an active member of the European College of Veterinary Anaesthesia and Analgesia for many years and am currently President of the College. I have been married for almost 40 years and have three fabulous children and five beautiful grandchildren. I would like to spend a large chunk of my upcoming retirement gardening.